

Edward C. Mahar

August 24, 1958 - September 19, 2017

Loudonville-Edward C. Mahar, 59, entered Eternal Life Tuesday, September 19, 2017 at St. Peter's Hospital. Born in Ticonderoga, he was the son of Edward F. and Christie Houston Mahar.

He was a graduate of Shaker High School and Syracuse University. He worked for years in the financial services sector, earning his Series 7 license and working for a series of brokerage firms and banks, before starting his own real estate financing company, Aspinwall Associates. He had a passion for the outdoors and spent many hours fishing both the ocean and trout streams. Spending all of his childhood summers on the Rhode Island shore, he deeply loved being at the ocean, and developed a passion for the Boston Red Sox.

He loved to travel, avidly planning his next vacation as soon as he returned home. He had visited all but two of the United States.

Ned is survived by his wife Beth and son Colin, nephew Sam Mahar and numerous in-laws, cousins, nieces, nephews and friends.

“ Ned... "Neddy"... "Ned-Hits"... dear old friend. 'Sitting here with tears in my eyes. So glad to have seen and raised a glass with you recently. As fourth graders, we may have lived on opposite sides of town, but we still managed to hang out... We knew from day one we were good mates. We enjoyed making forts, endured cassocks and ruffles around our necks as good little choir boys (yeah right) as pre-teens, showed up in ill-fitting suits to learn the Fox Trot, touched base during the summer and skipped classes at Chingachgook, hunted for muscles (and other trouble) during summers in Weekapaug, and then years passed. Much later in our teens, Christy told my mom you too were at SU. I showed without warning at your dorm door. The bond immediately continued... we explored the same haunts, chased the same coeds, became room mates, jammed, listened to The Dead, quaffed cold ones, rode around in "Earl" your vintage Mustang and talked late into the night about life to come. Then, when we both became "adults" it continued - perhaps not regularly enough - but always with vigor and knowledge that we were those kind of friends who could always just take up from where we left off. Man o man Ned, you will be missed. Beth and Colin.... please know the void in our lives that we now share with you, but how enriched and warmed we will always be by having had the kind, irreverent, warm, loving, intelligent, Ned Mahar in our lives.
