Bill and I just wanted to let you know our thoughts are with you and wanted to share a funny story with you about your parents, in the hopes it may make you smile during the extremely difficult time you are and will have to go through. So, here we go, when my dad, Ron Traver, turned 70 we hosted a surprise birthday party at our house, of course, your parents were a must be guest. Well, your parents show up the day before as we are sitting there eating Nathan's cocktail dogs and I see this big Caddy go by looking like it was lost. Then the phone rings and it is your dad looking for our house. I told him where it was and they came. All along I am panicking thinking they are here a day early. Well there's your dad, as shy as he is, saying where's my dogs, I want bread with mine and then proceeds to tell me he came a day early to make sure he knew where to go the next day for the real party. They were a fun loving, unique couple so live with your memories and remember their "stories". I am sure you have many. God Bless.. I have fond memories of both of you and Rick, Mary Rita and my Dad Ron at the Race track- lots of laughs and good times. Erin, your parents were wonderful to my Dad and he loved them like family.
