“ Dear Laberge Family - my sincerest condolences on Ronald's passing. He was quite the character - scolded me for not replying to him for several years after reaching out to me. I was going to return the favor and unfortunately came across his obituary. Seems we are distant cousins and he filled me in on a family tree. Glad he was persistent and we did connect. “ Dear Anna,

We are so thankful for the hospitality that you and Ron showed us when we dropped in and visited you last October as we drove from Maison Laberge to Texas. When Ron spearheaded the monumental effort to translate the seminal work on the history of the Laberge family written by Pierre-Lionel Laberge from French into English, I'm not sure that he recognized how important his effort was and that it would live long beyond him. Lois and I were so happy and honored to meet him in person. His book is proudly displayed in Maison Laberge which was built by our ancestor, Robert de la Berge and is one of the oldest in North America.

Rest in peace dear friend.

“ I'm very sorry for your loss. Ron and I shared an interest in genealogy and spoke about it over the years. My grandfather, Edmour Bourdeau, was "Big Fern's" cousin and in fact when Edmour immigrated from Canada in 1926, his manifest notes that he was joining his cousin Fernand Laberge in Messina NY. My dad was Larry Bourdeau. My cousin Fern shared Ron's passing with me and I attended the virtual service, which was beautiful and touching. French Canadian ties are strong and the family get togethers and visits described by Ron at the service were very much like the ones that I remember at Edmour and Leonie's home with the Bourdeaus. I wish you all peace. Debra (Bourdeau) McLoughlin
