“ In the early 80's, when I would come to Long Island to visit my then boyfriend, (now husband) I would visit with my husband Bob's friends with him. One day I was coming out of the bathroom of Kevin, (my husband's friend) house and there I see my cousin Vincent sitting with his back to me at the kitchen table talking over Kevin's insurance policy. I instantly new it was him by his voice. So, I snuck up to him from behind and put my arms around him and kissed his neck. He just about fell off of the chair with surprise. He couldn't for the life of him understand who was kissing him because he didn't see me yet. It was a good memory of a time when Vincent was healthy and funny as hell. He then spent some time with us for the next few years. When he moved back to Albany we lost touch. God, please keep Vincent close to Your Table and share with him his Inheritance of Heaven.

“ My big cousin Vincent will always be remembered by me as a very handsome and witty guy.

I'm confident in my faith that you are now in a place of comfort and love.

R.I.P.

Love,

Cousin Marsha

“ My wife and I would share meals and have conversation with Vince on occasion. He enjoyed food and was a great conversationalist. He would share his times spent abroad in Japan. He also was inquisitive about Asian food be it Japanese or Korean. My wife shared her knowledge/tips of certain food preparations. Vince was a nice man. May he rest in peace. Michael and Lee Farinacci.
